1. MARKET TRENDS & INVESTMENT INSIGHTS

OVERVIEW

The North Texas real estate market has been experiencing notable trends, reflecting both challenges and opportunities for investors. Below is an overview of the latest developments, key statistics, and expert predictions on land value appreciation in the region.

- » Price Appreciation: In December 2024, the Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW) area saw its median home sale price rise by over 3% compared to the previous year, aligning with a nationwide trend of increasing home prices.
- » Market Dynamics: Homes in the DFW area are staying on the market longer. In December, properties averaged 60 days before going under contract, compared to three weeks in March 2022. This shift is largely attributed to higher mortgage rates impacting buyer affordability.
- » Construction Costs: The implementation of tariffs on materials such as softwood lumber, steel, aluminum, and gypsum has increased home construction costs in Texas. These tariffs could add between $7,500 to $22,000 to the price of a new home, potentially affecting the development of affordable housing.

KEY STATISTICS AND MARKET GROWTH POTENTIAL

- » Land Prices: As of mid-2024, the median price for an acre in Texas rose to $4,702, marking a 3% year-over-year increase.
- » Regional Variations: In North Dallas, home prices experienced a significant surge, with a 19% increase in January 2025 compared to the previous year. The median sale price reached approximately $1 million, and homes typically remained on the market for 48 days.
- » Investment Appeal: The DFW metroplex has been recognized as the top spot for real estate investment and development in 2025, owing to its robust economic recovery and substantial population growth. Since early 2020, housing prices in Dallas have risen by nearly 38%, yet the region maintains relative affordability with a median home price of $382,000.

EXPERT PREDICTIONS ON LAND VALUE APPRECIATION

- » Continued Growth: Experts anticipate that the strong demand and increasing prices in the Texas land market will persist over the next three to five years before stabilizing. While interest rate hikes may deter some buyers, Texas remains a high-growth destination, suggesting sustained land value appreciation in the near term.
- » Moderate Increases: Through the third quarter of 2024, the annualized statewide price change for rural land in Texas moderated, with prices up 2.36% year-over-year, reaching $4,737 per acre. However, market activity remains below 2019 levels, indicating a potential slowdown in sales volume.

In summary, North Texas continues to exhibit a dynamic real estate market characterized by rising prices and evolving market conditions. While challenges such as increased construction costs and longer property listing durations exist, the region's strong economic fundamentals and population growth contribute to a positive outlook for land value appreciation.
